Governor Appoints David Schroeder as Division II Water Superintendent

CHEYENNE, Wyo. – Governor Matt Mead has appointed David Schroeder as the new Water Division II Water Superintendent in Sheridan. Schroeder, who worked for the State Engineer's Office Water Division II from 2005 to 2014, replaces Carmine Loguidice, who retired March 8th with over 28 years service. Schroeder will start April 11, 2016.

The Division II Superintendent is based in Sheridan, WY and oversees water administration in the Tongue River, the Belle Fourche, the Powder River, Cheyenne River and all tributaries within those drainages.

“Water Division II has unique challenges, for example operations under the Yellowstone River Compact following the litigation with Montana. I look forward to David's contributions in this matter and others,” Governor Mead said.

The Superintendent supervises water commissioners' administration and regulation of waters and is a member of the constitutionally created State Board of Control, which is responsible for adjudicating and modifying Wyoming water rights.

State Engineer Patrick Tyrrell congratulated Schroeder on his appointment. “David played an important role in the highly visible MT v. WY lawsuit. That experience I'm sure helped prepare him for what will be a very important role moving forward in Division II,” Tyrrell stated. “He is well qualified and I welcome his contributions to Water Division II.” Tyrrell asks that constituents in Water Division II who have water-related questions for this office contact Mr. Schroeder or his staff at the Sheridan office at 307-674-7012.
